Hello! I'm Deborah, the founder of AfterCrafts. I have been passionate about making things my entire life and originally made my career in product development specialising in giftware and children's activity sets.

Having found the experience of homeschooling my son during lockdowns unexpectedly rewarding, I saw an opportunity to combine my love of crafting with my new found interest in teaching. I started working at both a local school and the UK's leading extracurricular art class provider and gained experience in working with children of all ages and abilities (including those with special educational needs).

I believe passionately in the value of craft and nurturing creativity for children's mental health and future development.

I know first-hand how therapeutic and rewarding it is to experiment with new materials, try out different techniques, and create something that you can be truly proud of. And, best of all, I love sharing that joy with others!
